

Bude Folk Club: Privacy Policy

This Privacy Policy sets out how we collect and use your personal information and what your individual data protection and privacy rights are.

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) is already in force and we are currently in a period of implementation with the deadline for compliance set for 25 May 2018.

This Privacy Policy was created on 1st May 2018

Bude Folk Club takes your privacy seriously. This privacy policy describes what personal information we collect and how we use it.

Your data: We will only hold your name, your email address, and (if you have chosen to give it to us) your phone number. You have the right to ask for your data to be removed from our database at any time.

Who is Responsible for Processing Your Personal Data

Ali Rowe (Admin for Bude Folk Club) is the Data Controller. She, acting on Behalf of Bude Folk Club is responsible for how your personal data is collected, stored and processed.

Managing Your Personal Data

One of the principles of the Data Protection Act 1998 (and the GDPR), is that we can only process data for the purpose for which it is collected. This means that if we collect your name and contact so that you can become a member of your club, we can't simply use that information to allow any affiliates or other clubs / festivals to contact you for marketing purposes. We are to tell people when they join our club if we are going to transfer their data, for example to another organisation.

When you share your personal information with us, you have a right to expect that information to be treated with total confidentiality. Therefore, it is our responsibility to manage your personal data that you provide to us with care and in accordance with all data protection legislation and industry best practice.

Whether you have supplied your personal details online or by email, we will never use them without a lawful reason to do so. We will use your personal data for the purposes for which they were initially requested which is to keep you informed of events being run by the Bude Folk Club, Bude Folk Festival and other local and related Folk News.

Your Responsibility

It is your responsibility to ensure that your personal data provided to us is accurate and up to date. You can update your personal contact details, including email address and phone number, by contacting Ali at any time.
